1 FOREWORD

Once again, the editors would like to thank all those without whom the production of the Bulletin would not be possible, in particular the contributors and the advertisers. Any reader who would like to place an advertisement in a future issue, or who knows of anyone who would like to do so, is warmly invited to approach the editors.

For some time now, there has been a shortage of back numbers of the Bulletin. To meet this need, and also to make the Bulletin more widely available, in particular to participants in the Vienna Congress, the first seven issues were reprinted over the summer in a single volume covering the years 1975-81. These may be purchased from either editor for the sum of £5 each, so now is the time for those who have lost their old BBBS to replace them. As the reprint of all seven issues is bound between one set of covers, it will no longer be possible to provide replacements of individual issues of BBBS 1-7.

Lastly, it is our sad duty to record the deaths of several contributors. Dr. D. Bethell, University College Dublin, The Revd. Dr. E. R. Hardy, Jesus College, Cambridge, Professor A. Pennington, Lady Margaret Hall and briefly, as Professor of Comparative Slavonic Philology, St. Hilda's College, Oxford, and Mr. J.B. Ward-Perkins, for many years Director of the British School at Rome, all died during the year. In addition we have been asked to make it known that Vera Likhacheva, the Russian art historian, died in September 1981 as a result of injuries sustained in a motor accident.

History Today

Founded in 1951, History Today has entered its third decade in a new format while retaining all the original aims of the founder editors, Peter Quennell and Alan Hodge. They wrote in the first issue History Today is devoted to the study of history—in the widest meaning. It will be written by experts and it will cover many specialist subjects, but the main intention is to interest the general reader. The policy of the original editors has remained the policy of History Today.

In the past two years contributors to the magazine have included: Antonia Fraser, Sheila Marks, John Vincent, Douglas Johnson, Christopher Hill, C. R. Boxer, A. L. Rowse, Asa Briggs, Alan Bullock, Michael Grant, C. V. Wedgwood, Gavin Stamp.

There has been an important series on the Makers of the 20th Century covering the most important figures of the past 80 years. A series in preparation will concentrate on the vast variety, scope, possibilities and limitations of source material available to the historian for the study of the twentieth-century.

In the future History Today intends to expand its reviewing of books and to carry regular reviews of paperbacks. Other items will include news about the history world, news of historical monuments, exhibitions, films and television.

History Today is available monthly at your newsagent or you can take out an annual subscription.

I enclose my subscription for 12 issues of History Today (£12.50 per annum inc. p. & p. for U.K. residents, $32 for U.S.A. residents).
